Dear Friends and Fellow Republicans

Thoughts About the Durham Report

Earlier this week, the Durham report finally was released, and it showed what we all knew. That the FBI, in deference to the radical left which controls Washington DC, should not have been investigating Donald Trump. The fact that the corporate media refuses to cover this shows just how corrupt they have become. The NY Times had the gall to say that there was nothing new in the Durham report.

If I have any issues with the Durham report, it's the fact that the report does not call for any wholesale changes in how the FBI handles politically sensitive enforcement. But this law enforcement must not be political, but must be free from politics as much as possible. The politicization of the FBI started in the Obama regime, and look at where we are now.

We may or may not always agree with how a criminal case gets handled. But before the Obama years, we always believed that the DoJ and FBI were trying to do their best. No one really believes this anymore. Most everyone, on both sides of the political divide, now believe that the FBI and DoJ prosecute not based on guilt or innocence, but based on political ideology or who you donated to.

Cori Bush speaks for the DEI Industrial Complex – 14 trillion in reparations necessary

Nothing will ever be enough for the DEI (Diversity, Equity, Inclusivity) Industrial Complex. Seems that Squad Member Cori Bush has introduced legislation which would put Americans on the hook for 14 trillion in restitutions. Think on this for a few minutes. Each of us, who have never owned a slave in our lifetimes, are going to, if this bill passes, to have to pay 14 trillion dollars in restitutions to people who have never been slaves. We would be on the hook for paying restitutions to celebrities such as Michael Jordan, Meghan Markle, Oprah Winfrey, etc etc etc. They will never be happy, nothing will ever be enough. It's not enough that we fought a great Civil War that freed slaves back in the 1860's. The DEI enablers will never be happy, this is how they earn their keep – by siphoning off money from hard working Americans to give to those who have every right to succeed in our free society.
