Dear Friends and Fellow Republicans

Us Vs. Them 2024

Last week, the Wall Street Journal ran a fascinating Op-Ed about the cultural divide in the USA. Titled Us Vs. Them by Kimberly Strassel, the article talks about how a certain group of the electorate, which is rather small, but is well connected, how they think differently than does the rest of the USA. The polling data, done by Rasmussen's RMG Research, shows just how low the influence makers of the USA think of the rest of the country, and how disconnected the 2 groups of us are.

For the record, the Rasmussen Polling Firm RMG determined being "elite status" by these 3 criteria:

1. Having a post-graduate degree
2. Earning over $150,000 per annum
3. Must live in a high density area

74% of the “Elites” say their finances are getting better compared to 20% from the rest of the country. This 74% goes to 88% when the respondent went to an Ivy League School.

84% of “Elites” say that Biden has done a good job as President, compared to 20% of the rest of voters

89% of “Elites” have a favorable view of University Professors.

79% of “Elites” think that journalists are doing a good job

67% of “Elites” love Congress. Me personally, I love Ben Cline and detest the institution.

66% of “Elites” say that teachers and not parents should decide what a child should be taught

50% of “Elites” say that we have too many freedoms in the USA – where 60% of ordinary Americans say there is too much government control.

77% of “Elites” say that “strict rationing of gas, meat, and electricity” is necessary to fight climate change. 28% of the rest of the country believes that. Of course many of these same elites have private jets, but we won’t go there.

67% of “Elites” think that we should ban gasoline powered cars and stoves and “inessential air travel” for ordinary Americans.

This is what the self appointed elites think of each of us. Most Americans do not agree with the self appointed upper crust. However most Americans do get their news from corporate media that the self appointed elites control. This is our last real chance to take back America from a group of snobs who do not like us, and think that we should thank them. The reasons above are why the “upper crust” detests Donald Trump so much. Not because they despise Trump, because they do. It’s because they look down on us regular folk as a whole and want to control us through government regulation.

Megyn Kelly and Victor Davis Hanson discussed this yesterday on a video. Please watch, this is your future. <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=vNnwboyS4Rk>
